I. INTRODUCTION

A. ORGANIZATION BACKGROUND

The Lebanon Reforestation Initiative (LRI) is a Lebanese NGO registered at the Ministry of Interior and Municipalities under no. 1186 on 18 June 2014 and had started as a project launched in 2010 by the United States Forest Service (USFS) Office of International Programs (IP) through the support and funding of the United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

One of LRI's currently implemented project is the "Livelihoods in Forestry" project funded by USAID. The project aims at improving sustainable forestry activities through the establishment of models for economic forestry and forest-related rural tourism. One of the project components is focused on engaging women in forestry-related activities.

II. PURPOSE

Under the context of the Livelihood in Forests (LiF) funded by USAID, LRI seeks to conduct a gender analysis in around 40 target communities of Rachaiya, Baalbeck-Hermel, North, Jbeil, Batroun, Metn and Kesserwane districts, in the purpose of identifying the gender gaps in forestry sector and developing recommendations of initiatives to address these gaps and define the role of women in forest-related activities (e.g. reforestation, forest fire prevention, forest management, ecotourism, agroforestry, forest protection and conservation, among others).

The project is based on the theory that rural communities, which sustain their forest resources, will have improved livelihoods through economic benefits of seasonal job creation and workforce development in reforestation if they are supported to 1) have good governance over their shared resources; 2) participate in forest conservation activities; 3) improve their skills in forest management and 4) establish forest-related economic activities.

With the purpose of achieving this objective considering to the different needs of men and women and giving both equal opportunities to benefit from the project, LRI is seeking to collaborate with a gender expert to undertake the below tasks in collaboration with LRI gender focal point:

- Develop the questions addressing the six domains of gender analysis under the framework of USAID's GE/FE Policy (ADS Chapter 201);
- Train the field team to conduct the gender analysis in target communities;
- Prepare and conduct 5 Focus Group Discussions in target communities;
- Report the gender analysis results and recommendations.

A. SCOPE OF WORK

The gender analysis is conducted with the aim of improving female participation in productive economic resources in the forestry sector. Results and recommendations will be used to identify the potential role of women in the project and the ways to overcome challenges to their effective civic participation (environmental committees, seasonal and permanent jobs, awareness and capacity building events, etc...).

The gender expert will be responsible of developing the gender analysis methodology as well as customizing the analysis by target community and by type of stakeholders (men, women, universities, NGOs, government authorities, etc...). The expert will be testing and adjusting the questions in addition to training the data collectors on the developed data collection tools. In the purpose of triangulation of the collected information, the gender expert will be conducting Focus Group Discussions in the same target communities. Results will be combined with the support of LRI gender focal point and reported using the gender analysis matrix (Attached).

B. DELIVERABLES
