Section A – Description of Required Professional Services

A1. Organizational Information

The Lebanese Observatory for Workers & Employees Rights (LWRO) is a Lebanese non-profit organization committed to promoting social justice and advocating for the rights of workers and employees, regardless of gender, nationality, religion, or other identities. We are guided by international conventions and declarations on human rights and gender justice, such as the International Convention for Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, and recommendations from the International Labor Organization (ILO).

Mission:

Our mission is to empower and advocate for the rights and welfare of workers and employees across Lebanon. We achieve this through comprehensive research, education, and legal support, with the goal of fostering equitable workplaces and social justice.

Vision:

We envision a society in Lebanon where every worker and employee is treated with dignity, fairness, and respect, and where their rights are safeguarded without discrimination or exploitation.

To fulfill our mission and strategic goals, LWRO focuses on developing gender-sensitive and human rights-based social protection systems and legal frameworks. Our approach is guided by the principles of social justice: access, equity, participation, gender equality, and human rights.

Our interventions operate at three levels: individual, community, and policy. We empower workers through labor rights literacy and awareness-raising, advocate for inclusive labor laws and social protection policies, and promote the democratization of the trade union movement.

LWRO employs various strategies and tools to reinforce workers' rights and protection, including monitoring and documenting violations, raising awareness, providing legal support, capacity building, and networking. We also engage in nationwide advocacy campaigns aimed at reforming labor policies and protection mechanisms, ensuring that workers' rights are considered and promoted at the national level.

A2. Project Summary

Recognizing the pivotal role of media in shaping societal values, fostering political discourse, and holding leaders accountable, we have embarked on a mission to prioritize public dialogue concerning workers' issues in Lebanon. Our initiative, known as "Workers' Voice" or "صوت العمال" in Arabic, stands as an inclusive and interactive alternative media platform.

Grounded in principles of freedom of expression, independent journalism, social justice, and fair labor practices, Workers' Voice serves as a reliable source of information for the public, journalists, civil society, and other stakeholders. Through our collaboration with the Lebanese Observatory for Workers & Employees Rights (LWRO), we provide comprehensive insights into the realities faced by workers, including rights violations, pertinent legislation, and the state of the trade union movement in Lebanon.

Moreover, Workers' Voice aims to become a trusted reference on Lebanese labor laws, gender equality in the workplace, social protection frameworks, and the historical and present-day landscape of the trade union movement. Our platform offers a safe space for workers to voice their concerns and share their experiences freely.

In addition to information dissemination, we undertake public awareness and advocacy campaigns to promote labor rights and push for meaningful reforms. These campaigns include "Know Your Rights" (اعرف حقك), which raises awareness on labor rights from a gender-inclusive and diverse perspective, and "The Trade Union Protects" (النقابة، بتحمي), highlighting the vital role of free trade unions in safeguarding workers' rights.

Furthermore, we advocate for urgent amendments to the Lebanese Labor Law to ensure fair and equitable treatment of all workers. Through our multifaceted approach, Workers' Voice strives to empower workers, foster dialogue, and effect positive change in Lebanon's labor landscape.
