Section 3: Scope of Work

A- Description of the Client

Agrifresh Home Delivery (Part of Agrifresh George Joseph Doummar and Co) Zahle, Industrial City

Agrifresh is a packaging facility for fresh-cut vegetables and salads. Agricultural engineer Georges Doummar, co-owner of Agrifresh, owns a lot of land in the Bekaa which was planted with traditional crops until a few years ago when he established Agrifresh and planted his lands with different varieties of vegetables. The company established a packing house in the area that consists of cold storage for fresh cuts vegetables. The company distributes its products (mixed salads, garlic paste, and sandwiches) to many restaurants and supermarkets.

Due to the current circumstance in Lebanon, the company is innovating a new line of service to fill the gap created by the closing of the restaurants and some supermarkets. The new line is a home delivery service of fresh-cut ready to eat vegetables powered by a mobile application that will allow the client to place an order for next-day delivery to their home. The company started by handling three clients on the first day and it reached 290 clients in less than a month—only using Whatsapp messenger. However to continue and scale up this service, Agrifresh wants to introduce a dedicated mobile application that would facilitate the order processing.

In addition to Agrifresh products, the application will bear a special separate section to enable orders of fruits and vegetables produced by very small farmers to help those small producers sell their crops at a good price. Agrifresh will offer this service on a non-profit basis.

Agrifresh launched its home delivery service during the COVID19 crisis and the client based is growing rapidly. In addition to service the Bekaa region, the company started delivering to Mount Lebanon regions, and the demand is high from Keserwan. Typical buyers are households that prefer to buy fresh ready to eat products at lower prices than markets offer.

Buyers will purchase all kinds of packaged sterilized fresh vegetables, such as purslane, carrots, lettuce, cabbage, squash, tomato, cucumber, parsley, radish, thyme, spinach, garlic potato, and many other vegetable varieties. In addition, they can have access to fruits cultivated by other small farmers such as cherries, berries, and other fruits in the special section of the application.

Due to the increased demand, Agrifresh cannot efficiently process the order coming via Whatsapp. The company needs a dedicated technology platform for this and aims to develop a mobile application for this purpose. (Several years ago, Agrifresh developed a similar app, but it does not function properly because it was not purpose built, and it is very difficult to maintain and update.)

LED will cost-share with Agrifresh to hire a mobile application developer with expertise in the development of food-related mobile applications. The expert will develop a native mobile application for Agrifresh exactly according to the client's needs and requirements. The application will handle order taking and processing.
