Section 3: Scope of Work

A- Description of the Client

Bioland SARL Jbeil, St. Mary Street, Mount Lebanon

Bioland was established in 2009. It has expertise in aromatic herbs, trees plantation, and natural essential oil production, operating in Lebanon and the Middle East. Bioland has exclusive farming contracts with farmers and landowners in the local market for raw material production and with worldwide companies for final product selling. Production is 80% Lavender Oil, 8% Neroli Oil, and 12% other oils.

At Bioland, aromatic herbs plantation increased by 300% between 2020 and 2021, from 600,000 plants to 1,800,000 and 19,000 trees were also planted covering a total area of around 200 hectares. Long-term contract farming with landlords, COOPs and NGOs, and farmers to minimize financial risk and quickly increase plantation. Bioland offers the farmers guaranteed income in USD when products are exported to markets abroad. The company has contract farming covering all Lebanon from North to South, and Bekaa Valley. Plants are distributed at different altitudes and locations for specially mixed aromas.

Bioland has 3 distillation sites in Lebanon with a total capacity of 20 tons per day per site. They use hydro-distillation, steam technology, and the newest techniques to get the best yield and oil quality. Distillation sites are in Maamariéh, Sghar, Akkar. 95% of the production done by Bioland is exported to markets abroad. Their main types of customers are cosmetics companies and a few pharmaceutical companies. Countries of export for Bioland are the UK, Spain, France, and Germany.

Bioland management strives to change the traditional mentality of Lebanese farmers by shedding light on entering export markets and guiding them towards new plantation diversity so that they become empowered to enter the international markets with special products.

Currently, Bioland is looking forward to starting manufacturing new products coming from the bi-product that remains after manufacturing different types of essential oils. The bi-product is hydrosol. Hydrosol may be used in a variety of products such as perfumes, skin tones, makeup, aromatherapy, alternative medicines, and more. This production expansion will help Bioland have more products to offer their customers.

Several Buyers showed high interest in signing deals with Bioland once asked about the plan to manufacture new products coming from hydrosol.

Bioland through their research saw that lots of products could be manufactured with hydrosol being its base, but to decide what are the best products to be produced and to acquire the best formulations they will need an expert to guide them. Bioland is looking forward to developing 3 new products that will probably be considered in the cosmetics and detergents categories.

LED will cost-share with Bioland to hire a consultancy firm that will work with the production team on setting a roadmap to select the best products to be manufactured out of the hydrosol available at Bioland, and they will together work on developing the proper formulas and recipes required to get a well-qualified end-product. The consultancy firm will work on setting the plan to assess the available hydrosol currently stored at Bioland and determine the average amount of the bi-product that remains as a result of essential oil manufacturing. After that, the consultant will discuss with Bioland management the pros and cons of the products that could be manufactured through hydrosol to determine up to 3 products that are most profitable and suitable for Bioland to start manufacturing. After selecting what are the products to be manufactured, the consultancy firm will work on guiding the production team on selecting the proper formulations, recipes, and production strategy to manufacture the selected products.
